TOWN COUNCIL HELD COURT OF REVISION

A regular meeting of the Strathmore Council was held on Tuesday night, Mayor Shrimpton presiding, and Councillors Miner, Cotti, Riddon and Taylor present.

At the opening Mayor Shrimpton requested the Council to observe "a minute of silence" out of respect to their late colleague, Councillor Frank Craddock.

The following resolution was moved by Councillor Taylor, seconded by Councillor Miner and passed:

That the Council of the Town of Strathmore hereby place on record their sincere regret and sorrow on learning of the death of one of their number, Councillor Frank Craddock, with whom they had most pleasant associations during the short time Councillor Craddock was a member of the Town Council, and that an expression of deeply felt sympathy of the Town Council be conveyed to Mrs. Craddock and her parents.

The Council, as a Court of Revision considered the only two appeals against the current year's assessment, first that of Mrs. Ida Bennett which was dismissed on the grounds that the assessment was on a par with the land in the same district.

The second was that of St. Michael & All Angels Church, an appeal which did not meet with the approval of the Council, especially as the assessment was the same as last year, when the taxes had been remitted in full. The Council, under the circumstances considered the appeal as infringing to say the least, as the assessment had been made according to the Town Act according to the opinion of Solicitor Wears, and other authorities. The appeal was dismissed.

The minutes of the last meeting of the Council were read and confirmed. Secretary Wears reported that he has taken action against the Globe Oil Co., and requested the matter would be settled by the company transferring the lots to the Town.

An appeal for support from the Strathmore Army was received, and a grant of $25 was made.

By-law No. 125 was read and passed naming T. M. Wears retaining office to hold in election to fill the vacancy created by the death of Councillor Craddock, and nominations will be received on May 11th.

The School Board notified the council of their willingness to transfer a portion of land at the corner of Main Avenue and Stockton Road, and a plan of survey will be prepared later in the season when an authorized land surveyor will visit Strathmore.

Two town lots were sold, one to J. Izzard, and one to T. M. Wears.

Councillor Miner developed a "Scott's emulsion", and desired to get even with the Town Clerk by raising the price upon the lot that he required, but the Mayor and Councillors in a request that they stand for any handicaps being placed on their worthy official in his work of improvement on Railway Avenue, and that Justice be meted out.

The application of Paul Christensen for the use of a lot for garden purposes was granted, and also that of John Cleve for the same purpose, on Saturday, May 11th was granted as "The Day for the Girl Scout".

A request will be sent to the Canadian Legion and I.O.O.F. requesting their assistance in making a success of Empire Shopping Week.

Current accounts amounting to about $95 was referred to the Finance Committee for payment.

An informal discussion took place

GOLF NOTES

The men's Captain vs. Vice-Captain has arranged an invitation match with which to open the season's play. This takes the form of a team match with the forces of the Captain opposed to those of the Vice-captain. A novel arrangement of scoring has been decided upon for this match only. The players on the Captain's side are required to keep the score by holes (match play), and the players on the Vice-captain's side will keep the score on their cards by strokes as in medal play. This is for the purpose of checking only, and will be of great help to those in charge. Although the outcome of the match must naturally be decided by holes alone.

Cards with name and date will be found in the clubhouse on the morning of the match, May 12th, and these must be deposited in the box at the rate at the close of the game. Cards which have been carried away from the links instead of having been so deposited, will positively not be considered. The match will consist, as usual, of 18 holes match play.

The list of opponents is given below, and any member or prospective member whose name has been omitted by any resident of this district who would enjoy playing in this invitation game, should notify Mr. Gray or Mr. Dunn, who will be glad to make arrangements for partners for this match.

Churchill The New Western Ocean Port

WINNIPEG—Announcement that the rails of the Hudson Bay Railway had reached Churchill is the most welcome news the people of Western Canada have received for some time, heralding as it did, the realization of a long-entertained hope. For many years Western Canada agitated for the building of a railway to the Bay. It was vigorous, even violently opposed by Eastern Canada interests, and, politically speaking, the voice of the West was weak in comparison to that of the East. The West, however, kept up its campaign of education as to the merits of feasibility of the route, and ultimately all political parties in Canada became committed to the project.

Finally, plans for a Hudson Bay Railway assumed definite shape in 1910, when a branch line of the Canadian Northern was completed from Hudson Bay Junction, Sask., to The Pas, Manitoba, and the building of a Western line from The Pas to Hudson Bay was authorized by Parliament. Work commenced the following year with Churchill as the objective.

Following a change of Administration at Ottawa, Churchill was abandoned as the proposed terminus, and Fort Nelson chosen. The location of the railroad was accordingly altered. The right-of-way was cleared and graded, to Fort Nelson and steel laid before the end of 1916, as far as Kettle Rapids, 232 miles from The Pas.

Owing to the war and consequent lack of men and steel, operations were suspended and for some years only part of the completed railway was put in to repair.

The work thus commenced by the Government in 1910 was continued by the (conservative) civil war and the after war period of financial depression topped the work. The work, however, had only been carried on in a more or less haphazard manner, and the result that progress was slow, and the country, as a whole, lacked confidence. In the undertaking, the East regarding it as a waste of public money and the nature of a political sop to the West.

With the acceptance by Hon. C. M. Dunning of the portfolio of railways in the Mackenzie King Government, a marked change took place. It is an open secret that Mr. Dunning made the immediate and vigorous construction it the road a condition of his entry into the Government. He frankly told the people of the West that he regarded it as "his job" to complete the railway in the shortest possible space of time.

The task of reconditioning the road which had fallen into disrepair was begun, and, in view of divergent views which prevailed as to the relative merits of Churchill and Nelson as terminal harbours, Mr. Dunning secured the services of the most eminent British harbor engineer to decide the question. He reported strongly in favor of Churchill, and his report was immediately accepted, and the work again diverted in that direction.

Since then there has been no let-up in construction. It has been pushed forward day and night, in season and out of season, with the gratifying result announced on Good Friday.

In the meantime, Mr. Dunning grasped the problem of building an effective harbor at Churchill and establishing the feasibility of the ocean route through Hudson Straits. Airplane and other surveys, radio, and every modern invention was called into use, and in two years public opinion in the West was not only justified, but the East was largely converted, especially as huge and very valuable mineral discoveries in the northland made accessible by the railway quickly followed.

Although both steel and telegraph have reached Churchill it will require some months yet to fully belated the route to make it capable of efficient handling trains. There is an enormous amount of work to be done to build necessary harbor facilities at Churchill. That work is in progress and advanced prosecuted with the same vigor as characterized the building of the railway, be ruled in at once now that the rails have been laid.

It is confidently anticipated that, before the end of 1929 freight will be moving steadily from the prairies to the West's own ocean port of Churchill, and Mr. Dunning has already announced that the Crown's New Rate schedule of rates on grain will apply to the Hudson Bay route.

The new route will, it is believed, effect a veritable revolution in Western transportation. In preparation for it both of our great railway systems have been building north and south lines within recent years, whereas formerly their policy was to so connect lines as to move everything from east to west and west to east.

With the completion of the Hudson Bay Railway one of Canada's outstanding lines is being realized. It is in three Western Provinces that depth is to be given to the Dominion, something it has lacked since Confederation brought a Dominion into existence consisting of a long narrow strip extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific just north of the International boundary line.

What a Home-Steader Did

The rewards of perseverance, the value of mixed farming and the pleasure of rural life with present day conveniences are clearly revealed in the following letter received by the Canadian Pacific's Department of Colonization and Development from George W. Wilkerson, of Leduc, Alberta: "I came to Canada from the U. S. in 1890 and homesteaded west of Leduc. I sold my homestead and got a quarter section 11 miles south of Edmonton and got three more quarter sections on the same section at $3 an acre, and in 1920 was offered $22,000 for this section of land. I also got 2 other quarter-sections and had 2,120 acres, 60 head of horses and 140 cattle besides all necessary farm machinery and money in the bank by 1920. I came to this country with only a small capital and some hard times with a wife and two children and ten more were in Alberta. I believe in mixed farming as the only sure thing. I raised 25 cows at one time and was making $300 a month selling inspected cream to Edmonton City Dairy. Miscellaneous crops, such as corn, wheat, and alfalfa is coming in all the year round. Have divided my land among my four sons and have these around me. Now have only the lease half section to live on. As we have the telephone, mail and radio, it is better than living in town, as the car soon goes as there if we want to go to town."

FRANK CRADDOCK DIED ON SUNDAY

About ten days ago Frank G. Craddock contracted a severe cold, but nothing special was thought about it at first, and the usual home remedies were used, but without result. The physician was called in, pneumonia having developed of a most dangerous type, in fact his illness continued to grow hourly more critical, and on Thursday last it was deemed advisable to remove him to the Holy Cross Hospital, where, from his admittance, the case was pronounced almost without hope.

The skill of three physicians, was obtained, but without any improvement, in fact he continued to grow worse each day, and on Sunday morning he passed away, aged 30 years.

Mr. Craddock leaves a wife and two small children, one an infant of a few months.

He was born in Ireland, and became an orphan at an early age. While quite a young man he came to Canada, and joined the staff of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. During the Great War he enlisted in Dec. 1914 in the 51st Battalion, and later transferred to the Air Force, in which he served until December, 1918.

After the war he entered business with his father-in-law, Mr. "Mac" Barber, coming to Strathmore about six years ago.

He was a successful candidate for the Town Council last February, of which body he was a most useful and popular member.

In religion he was a member of St. Michael and All Angels Church, the members of which sincerely regret his early demise.

The sympathy of the entire community is sincerely extended to his sorrowing wife and children, and to his father-in-law, Mr. Mac Barber, and family, with whom he had been so closely associated for years.

Mr. Craddock, or, as he was generally known as "Frank", was one of the most popular young men in business and also among the members of the Canadian Legion.

The funeral services were conducted at Armstrong's Funeral Home, Calgary, by the rector of St. Michael and All Angels Church, the Rev. T. F. Winter.

The pallbearers were Mayor Shrimpton, W. S. Patterson, James Gunn, G. H. Patrick, S. H. Crowther and A. V. McFarland.

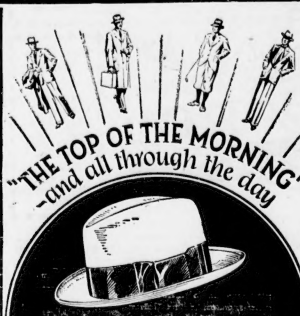

The casket was draped with the Union Jack, and a trumpet from the Strathmore Horse sounded the "Last Post" at the cemetery.

The funeral was very largely attended by the people of Strathmore and the surrounding district, in fact, it was one of the largest ever held in Calgary from this section, the interment taking place at Burnhead Cemetery.

The floral tributes made a most wonderful display, among which were noticed the following:

Wife and family, Uncles Alf and Jim, Mr. and Mrs. J. Sharpe, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Harwood, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. SPORT NOTES

GARNER IS GIVEN MOUNT ON BLUE LARKSPUR IN RACE

NEW YORK—Mack Garner, who rides for William Ziegler, Jr., is to have the mount on Blue Larkspur owned by E. B. Bradley in the Kentucky derby. The Bradley colt is the present favorite in the Churchill Downs classic. Garner comes of a good riding family. Three brothers, Guy, Willie and Skeets, are, or have been well-known jockeys.

MATHEWSON'S RECORD

The venerable Grover Cleveland Alexander is slowly moving toward a new record—moving as slowly and importantly as he did that October day when he shuffled in from the faraway bullpen to strike out Tony Lazzeri with the bases full and make the world's championship safe for the Cardinals. The old veteran can lift his eyes now and see the goal only a short distance down the dusty road. Seven more victories and he will equal the all-time winning record of Christy Mathewson. Eight more triumphs for old "Doc" and there will be a new mark for total victories in the National League. In the seventeen years of service Matty won 272 games and lost 187. When Alexander the Great beat the Heds in this year's opener at Kiel land field, it was his 36th victory only sickness or injury can keep him from passing Matty, for even if he is 43 (some say even older than that) there still ought to be eight good ball games left in the ancient arm of Alexander.

CLY YOUNG'S RECORD

One must look to the American League for records which Alex. is unlikely to approach. Walter Johnson, in 21 years, all with Washington, won 116 games, or 51 more than Alexander as he now stands. Then let us turn back to the figures of Denton T. (Cly) Young, who in 22 years won 111 games. Here, gentlemen, was a pitcher! He served only one more season than Johnson, yet won 55 more games. For fourteen consecutive years he won 20 or more games. He was in both the major leagues—Cleveland N.L. from 1896 to 1898; St. Louis A.L. from 1899 to 1900; Boston A.L. 1901 to 1908; Cleveland A.L. 1909, 1910 and part of 1911; Boston N.L. part of 1911.

FINE STANDOUTS IN KENTUCKY DERBY

NEW YORK—With the fifth running of the Kentucky Derby over the Churchill Downs course so near the historic race has taken on the appearance of a five-horse affair. One hundred and fifty-nine colts, geldings and fillies, the smallest field since 1925, have been nominated for this year's turf classic, but when past performances and pre-race workouts are considered, the race takes on a decidedly mid and far western hue. Only one eastern horse appears to be in the class of Blue Larkspur or Voltar from the middle states or Nahapagar and Ervick from the Pacific coast. Clyde Van Dusen, eastern owned, but western trained, is the main hope of the Atlantic seaboard. Since the official nominations were disclosed the middle of February, Blue Larkspur, which sports the colors of the Isle Hour Farm of Col. E. H. Bradley, has ruled the favorite. A sixth big contender, Rosalind Eye, owned by "Bathhouse" John Coughlin, of Chicago, was withdrawn from the classic recently. English Eye pulled up lame after working the Derby distance.

LIPTON AGAIN IS TO RACE

BELFAST, Ireland.—A challenge for the American cup has been issued by the Royal Ulster Yacht club on behalf of Sir Thomas Lipton, prominent yachtsman. The club suggested that the American Sandy Hook course be used for the race. Sir Thomas' new boat will be called the Shamrock V, and will be designed by Nicholson. The boat will be about 77 feet at the waterline and in the 22 metre class.

FORMER FOES BRING CRAFT OF SEA AND AIR TO CANADA

(Special to The Standard) TORONTO, Ontario.—Fifteen years ago when the world plunged into war there was in Germany a lot of four-teen year olds who were as fanatical as anyone when the Prussian guards came down the Unter den Linden at the goose-step, and shouted "hoorah" in his youthful falsetto voice whenever the Kaiser showed himself to the Berlin populace.

At the same time there was another young German, aged 22, a student in the boatbuilding craft in Hamburg. Being a native of Schleswig-Holstein, and a sailor of several years' experience, he was immediately drafted into the Imperial naval service and despatched to serve aboard the old Tachibana, a German battleship, and being converted to a mine-layer.

The boy did not actually see war at close range until two months after the war ended. The young man went through the whole war, saw service at the engagement known to Britishers as "The Heligoland affair," took part in several raids on the east coast of England with the German high sea fleet and built ships at Kiel, Wilhelmshaven and Hamburg.

After the war he came to Canada. Hans Schuch, the older man, is a naval architect, a constructor of amphibious aeroplanes, yachts and speed boats in Toronto. Alexander Schneider, now 29 years of age, is a pilot of the Canadian Transcontinental Airways, Quebec. And both are going to remain in this country. They have made application for citizenship and they consider Canada as their home and great field of future opportunity.

A few nights ago these two met for the first time. With them were several Canadian veterans. And over a hospitable meal of Niemeyer the former foes fought over again the battles of those never-to-be-forgotten years.

It was a peep into the war from "Fritz's" point of view. Canadian war veterans were quick to appreciate their accounts.

Schuch, tall, prematurely gray, courteous to the extreme, modestly related his first fling with the enemy. His baptism of fire was to be a real one and in his telling he divulged why the British had not sunk every German ship they met in those early weeks of the war.

"Bad ammunition," he said. "Our ships rolled with plenty of direct hits. The French ship was torn with holes, exploded, and we escaped with some casualties caused by shrapnel fire."

The gunners of H.M.S. Arcturion and the destroyers that surprised the mine-layer and her escort that foggy August morning in 1914 had shot straight; had shot well.

"Bad ammunition," said Schneider and he should know.

"Three days before the battle of Jutland," said Schuch, "I was ordered to report to the Imperial war office of Wilhelmshafen. I did not see any more of the war."

He was reluctant to discuss the Jutland fight. Admirals have fought it out since, and the quarrel is not ended yet by any means. Schuch went to the technical bureau of the Imperial navy, and remained there, at Hamburg and at Kiel for the remainder of the war. He put in long days and long nights planning, drawing, constructing new ships, mystery craft, U-boats, special raiders mine sweepers, tiny patrol boats.

The latter he studied particularly. It is from those days that he got the banking for building small speed boats, known hereabouts as "Sea Fleas". He is building them right here in Toronto now. They are due per little things that skip the water somewhere about 45 miles an hour.

testified to the high regard in which Herr Sachau was held by this democratic prince. It showed Prince Heinrich in profile with the following inscription: "To Chief Engineer Hans Sachau in appreciation and remembrance of the building of Ayesha IV." Sachau built four racing yachts for Prince Henry of Prussia. All the "Ayesha" boats are celebrated and known to those who love yachting. He showed aspects of the prince in shirt-sleeves standing by the boom of the Ayesha beside Sachau, the Hohenzollern features unmistakable, with a grayish beard, an older and mellower edition of Wilhelm of Doorn.

"And the Kaiser—is he still popular?" There was an intake of breath and a snort. Both men replied with the most unambiguous "no". There was no rancor, however; rather a sort of pity for the once great whom they described as a "talented" and influential sort of Imperial bull in a china shop.

Germany, apparently, does not want to say more. Nor did the Germans want to behold Herr Prince, the Kaiser's new wife; for Augusta Victoria, the empress whom Wilhelm divorced, was the popular. She was the sample of the dutiful German Hausfrau, a mother of many sturdy children, from the Crown Prince to the more obscure sons of that once mighty household.

Sachau, a man of few words, left the floor to Schneider, and the aviator told of commercial flying development in Germany since the war.

"Last year," he said, "the Junkers J12 aeroplane was sent by steamer to Reykjavik, the capital of Iceland. Landing facilities were sought and found. The idea was to establish a permanent air route from Berlin to London, then to Reykjavik, to the south point of Greenland and finally Quebec. The longest land to land flight would only be 1,000 miles," he continued. "That is the stretch from South Greenland. The distance from England to Iceland is 100 miles. The hop from Greenland to Quebec is comparatively short."

He made a rough sketch to show the point. Geographically and technically there could be no doubt as to the feasibility of the scheme.

Schneider flew for the Luftwaffe for a long time. In 1925 he went to New York, where he met Anthony Folker who pointed out to the young German aviator the advantages of this continent as a vast flying field. "It was particularly struck by Canada," said Schneider, "and it appealed to me as the ideal country for long distance flying. I may go in for the construction of amphibious aeroplanes. The amphibians, of course, are the ideal machines for this country. I know that there is a great future in aeroplanes building in Canada."

Mr. Schneider produced a photograph of somewhat forbidding appearance. It was that of a human skull holding a 50-mark note between the grinning teeth. He explained the picture was sent by German army aviators to the general staff, in protest against the bounty awarded each fighter for bringing down an enemy aeroplane. The "scrap of paper," representing so many marks, was considered neither dignified nor fair to the men who risked their lives for their country every day or to those fine men against whom they fought.

He Doesn't Want to be a Viscount

(Special to The Standard)
Copyright

LONDON, England—"I don't want to be a Viscount. I don't want people to call me Viscount."

This is the plaintive refrain of the Hon. Frederick Perceval, 14-year-old son of the tenth Earl of Egmont, the "Bancher Earl," who came from Fred's, Alberta, to succeed to the title and incidentally to find that being a nobleman has its troubles.

Avon Castle, the new home of the Earl and his son is approached by a private driveway one mile long which follows the course of the River Avon. The drive is lined on either side with rhododendron bushes already in bud, with behind them, a profusion of evergreen trees. There are hollyhocks, lilacs and a variety of cedars. It might be Stanley Park, Vancouver, or a typical bit of northern Ontario.

As the drive winds on one catches tantalizing glimpses of the castle in the distance. Surely the earl, as he drove up for the first time, must have thought it altogether. For years he had been dreaming glimpses of this his castle of dreams—mental pictures which had suddenly materialized, in as the road takes an unexpected turn at the end and the castle stands revealed before you.

It is a beautiful spot. Back of the castle, a forest of evergreens, and on one side lies the river, where, on a small dock the earl and the viscount stand fishing.

But they had not taken possession when the writer talked to them both early one morning at the White Hart hotel in sleepy Rimwood. It was drifting from the window panes. There was nobody about.

"This is the most miserable place I ever saw," drawled the boy.

"Are you the young Canadian?" asked the writer. He smiled with half a nod.

"Shake on it—so am I." For two minutes he looked suspiciously at the writer. Was this another ruse to corner him and make him say what he did not mean?

"Then his hand shot out in a firm Calgary grip and he grinned an open, frank Canadian smile.

He reminds me of a small cowboy sturdily standing there hands in pockets. With a soft gray hat pulled over his keen blue eyes. I wondered about the hat until I heard "History."

"The earl had bought it for him the day before, discarding the old family cap. Ten minutes afterwards he was bargaining with the boots in the hotel corridor."

"How much will you give me for this hat?" I don't like it. But the earl was in the office and the transaction had to be abandoned.

"The young viscount is surely the most miserable mortal in England."

I Saw Last Week

JIM MORAN and ALEX GRAY arranged some business transaction for May 15th, down near Carlsbad. T. L. CHAMBERLAIN lining up his best clients for the cleanup at the new bowling grounds. AWFUL hard to get Jack Bennett to do anything but talk. JIM WEIR enjoying "Aides Irish Boss" and stating that Rosemary Murphy is ONE of the most charming Scotch lassies he ever saw. EVERYONE extending a welcome to Joe Van Tien on upon his return from Winnipeg. AT CANAL FLAT a sign: "Hot air treatment given daily by the Electric Head Office, Strathmore, Alberta; R. Mileson, general manager; Hector McGregor, supt. dormitory section; Cecil Lambert, crumb section foreman and night manager; of the Musical Nightingales; with Ted Schulte in charge of the loops, drops and cut outs; chiefly the "cat-outs." "BILL" WILKINSON explaining to Percy Parish how women should be managed. "Some of them," said Bill, "should be their bleeding heads knocked off, but Percy was very noncommittal in expressing his views. GEORGE QUITTING setting "Ted" Schulte a good example, working in the garden. Ted, in turn, promised to do a little himself. PRINCIPAL CROWTHER and IAN KAMKINGIE inducing genial John Cusack to furnish free transportation to Calgary. JOE VAN TIGHEM "dressed up" to go to the golf links on Sunday. RAY FROGLAS putting up a good story to George Korb, and getting a job as a motor mechanic. GEORGE KEARNS still enquiring over the trip to Glenora, when Bob Gray and H. S. B. Chamberlain were directors of direction on the return trip, and used up many gallons of good gasoline. "Some trip," said George. "And then some. I'll tell the world."

CHAR. KEARNS making an early start on Monday at 6:30 A.M. JOHN DAVIS, of Ardena, coming in for breakfast at 4:30 A.M. after putting in a good hard half day's work; but trying to explain how he came to get such a late start that morning. "Never heard the alarm clock. It must have overlapped a few minutes."

Smothering crops that can be counted upon to smother Sow Thistle have not yet been sown. A top root, crop or a fibrous-rooted crop that assumes an abundance of moisture can be grown and deeply plowed under in hot, dry weather to further dry out the soil by cutting off capillary roots below. This is very effective.

It takes Sow Thistle ten years to get established in a district and it does it very systematically and quietly. Sow Thistle leaves a real trail of misery wherever it gets a foot hold. Finally the whole district wakes up to the situation and things pick up gradually and bet back to a much happier position. Farm values improve, good cultivation methods are studied and practiced and the Sow Thistle is reduced. Fortunately Sow Thistle never gets bad in poor soil. Where Sow Thistle is seen you can rest assured the land is first class. All it needs is the proper farm management to make a real success. This is evident in all Sow Thistle areas because there are farmers who have weathered the storm and come through with colors flying. They have well equipped farms and homes with bathrooms and sons, or they are driving six cylinder cars and visiting their families.

Sow Thistle was a menace but it is being conquered.

AUTOMOBILE PRODUCTION UP — NEW RECORD IS SET FOR CANADA

OTTAWA—Automobile production in Canada achieved a new record for all time during the month of March, with an output of 46,241 cars, compared with the previous monthly record, achieved in May of last year, of 39,342 cars.

The March figures are 20 per cent. above the average of 24,779 machines for the twelve months ending with March.

Customs records for March showed 8,691 cars were imported into Canada during the month, and a total of 15,661 cars were exported during the same period. For the first quarter of this year, imports totalled 25,600 cars, and exports aggregated 35,414 cars.

Of the total output during March, 31,438 cars were made for sale in Canada, and 9,188 cars were intended for export. The apparent consumption of automobiles in Canada during the month, as determined by adding the 31,438 cars made for sale in Canada to the 8,691 cars imported, amounted to 39,524 cars.

The spread between list prices of automobiles in the United States and Canada is narrowed when consideration is given the extra charge of from $5 to $25 which the purchaser across

CANADIAN PROBLEM

TORONTO—Premier Ferguson fairly aroused the Legislature with a story of what the Ontario Research Foundation is doing and has done, since its inception.

Chief in interest among the revelations he made regarding this new field of Provincial endeavor and enterprise was the announcement that experts of the Foundation have practically solved a process of capturing from the air the sulphur fumes which, in many mining districts of the province, are not only a nuisance but a danger to crop and vegetation. Not only will the new process eliminate such destruction, but it will turn the sulphur into economic uses and advantages. In view of the fact that the Province spends $3,000,000 yearly on imported sulphur, the worth of the process now being perfected to perfection cannot, the Prime Minister inferred, be set too high.

Mr. Ferguson's speech—delivered at second reading to his bill increasing the Government's appropriation for Foundation administration—came with all his accustomed vigor and reflected unbridled faith in the future of the enterprise, and an optimism that evoked from Liberal Leader William E. N.
Sinclair, and Hon. H. C. Nixon, representing the Progressive group, the voiced approval of the parties they spoke for.

"Another Pittsburgh"
"A bit of confidence—co-operation among ourselves—and the courage to go ahead and solve our problems," said the Premier, in speaking of the mineral possibilities of the North. "It will build for us another Pittsburgh north of the Great Lakes."

On the question of metals Mr. Ferguson laid great stress, deeming it as the foundation to the need, particularly of development of the iron ore industry and its by-products.

"Inadequate exploration has been done into the iron which lies in North ern Ontario," he stated. "Yet with the little investigation we have ascertained that we have one of the commercial value, this must be benefited, as the scientists and engineers call it, before we can compete with other countries on the continent, and research should find the way."

We don't seem to realize that we don't use one ton of Canadian iron in any metal industry from Halifax to Vancouver," the Premier declared.
"There must be some solution for this when we know there are millions of tons of ore lying in the ground."

LLOYD GEORGE'S PUNGENT WIT

LONDON—For the first time in this election campaign, David Lloyd George has let loose his pungent wit against the personality of Stanley Baldwin.

The Prime Minister is quite a clever fellow, quite an agreeable fellow," the ex-Premier told 3,000 in Manchester, and many thousands more hearing relays of his speech, in twenty-eight cities. "But, however excellent a vehicle may be without a driver, it is a lumbering, awing, mendering puttance on the road. He is a very clever passenger, but casual as a driver. He does for long stretches runs round and talks to a passenger and recharges his pipe. Easy going is all right, if circumstances are easy, but now they are not. We have not yet recovered more than four-fifths of our export trade. We have over 1,000,000 unemployed. We have terrible masses of men tramping each other down to get work. The honor of the nation is on trial."

Lloyd George then issued a challenge to Premier Baldwin. He has been ten years in office, I have been seventeen.
I ask him to pick any ten out of my seventeen, and compare them with his."

You'll like the Easy-Riding Comfort of the Ford Car

The Ford car is one of the easiest-riding cars on the road because of its low centre of gravity, minimum unsprung weight, Houdaille hydraulic shock absorbers and the unique construction of its transverse springs.

Furthermore, you are as comfortable in mind as in body when you drive the Ford car. You have confidence in the performance of the car because you know something of the quality that has been built into it.

Remember these two points when you select your next car. These are combined to an uncommon degree in the Ford.

Come in and drive a Ford car yourself through thickest traffic, up steepest hills, over roughest roads. A thirty-minute demonstration will convince you that there is nothing quite like it anywhere in simplicity of design, quality, price and performance.

HEARD ON THE STREET

Bill Tierney says, in the days when he was one of Amprior's Beau Brummels, civility consisted of saying "May I smoke?" Now it consists in saying: "Try one of mine."

"As a remedy for divorce, a Chicago judge urges men not to marry until they reach the age of reason. But that would bar so many from marriage altogether," remarks Tony Greengard, "that it would be a most unpopular solution."

"Could I interest you in a car?" asked Billy Gray.
"You might," responded the young lady coquettishly. "Drive around in one some afternoon."

"Some women wear well—others don't wear much," is Bill Wilkinsen's remarks after much observation, consideration and meditation.

The cashier of a Calgary movie house was selling tickets as Jim Swanson looked on. A customer buys a quarter ticket, lays down a half dollar, and walks away leaving his change.

"Does that often happen?" asked the genial Jim.

"Very often," replies the ticket seller.

"What do you do in a case like that?" asked Jim.

"Oh," says the girl in the ticket, "I always rap on the window with a sponge."

"Glimmy Crickets, that is a bright idea. I believe it would pay Jean to buy me a set of sponges."

Vin (to his dad): "Dad, can you sign your name with your eyes shut?"
Jim Moran: "Certainly."
Vin: "Well, let's see you shut your eyes and sign this report card."

"I told my son that he was not giving enough attention to the classics," remarked the conscientious parent. "I reproached him for not knowing the difference between the Iliad and the Odyssey."

"Was he properly apologetic?"
"Not at all. He said nobody could know everything, and asked me if I knew the difference between crystal receptivity and a neutrodrac."

The doctor had returned home late. "Poor darling," he said, as he kissed his wife. "You must have been lonely."

"Not at all, dear. I'm organizing cooking classes for the women who live round here."

"Really?" said her husband. "And what do you do with the things you cook?"

"Oh, we send them to our various neighbors."

The doctor kissed her again.

"Dear little woman," he said. "At ways thinking of your husband's practice?"

"But, Magnolia, if you would put your mind on your work a little more, I am sure that you would do better."

"Yes, ma'am, but if Ah put mah mind on mah work as much as you is continually tellin' me to, Ah wouldn't be able to think of nothin' else."

A traveling salesman, manages to get home just about once a month, red and yellow being his favorite colors, he naturally effects gaudy neckties, which are the admiration of his friends around the country.

Coming in off the road the other night, he found the front door locked and rang the bell.

The new Scandinavian girl-soldier, work whom his wife had employed just before his last visit home an swered, but before she unlocked the screen she called back into the next room:

"Ay, ma'am!"

"What is it, Olga?"

"De fuller wid he bust necktie is com' again."

George Koch: "So you are thinking of getting married, Jack? I hope you have considered the matter seriously."

Jack Bennett: "Oh, sure. I've been to two fortune-tellers and a clairvoyant, and looked in a signbook, and dreamed on a lock of 'er hair, and I've been to a medium and a astrologist, and they all tell me to go ahead, but I ain't one to marry recklessly."

A colored employee of an express company approached his superior with the query: "Boss, what we gwine do 'bout dat billigan? He's done sit up where he gwine."

The following preciously preserved extract from a love-letter written some time ago to his wife by a soldier on active service will evoke tender memories in thousands of former service men:

"Don't send me no more nagging letters, Little. They don't do no good."

I'm three thousand miles away from home and I want to enjoy this war in peace."

Maiden Aunt: "My dear, the way to manage your future husband is—"
Niece (interrupting): "Don't tell me, auntie. I've noticed that the women who know how to do that never get the chance."

A Sunday school teacher, after telling the class the parable of the talents, gave each boy a dime, explaining that they were to use their capital during the week and report on the following Sunday how much they had made.

"Now then," he said to the first boy, when they had gathered a week later, "how much has your talent gained?"

The boy produced 20 cents, and the teacher was delighted.

"Splendid," he exclaimed, then turned to the second boy.

"And how much have you brought my boy?"

"Nothing, sir."

The teacher's expression changed.

"There, you see," he told the class. "George has used his talent and brought one talent more, while Jim my has lost the talent he had."

He turned sternly to Jimmy.

"And what has become of your talent?"

"I tossed up with George, Sir, as he won."

The prospective tenant had inspected all the rooms, the coal cellar, and the other conveniences of the flat, and had expressed himself satisfied.

"Have you any children?" asked the porter.

"I have."

"Then you can't have the flat."

"But you don't understand. My youngest child is married and lives in Australia, and the other two are in America."

"That makes no difference," said the porter. "I have orders not to let this flat to anyone with children!"

"If you can't do better work I'll have to hire another office boy!"

"Thank you, sir. I could get along nicely with some help."

A young man who had not been married very long remarked at the dinner table the other day: "My dear, I wish you could make bread that a mother used to make."

The bride smiled and answered in a voice that did not tremble: "Well, dear, I wish you could make the dough that father used to make."

Bill Tierney says: "All tell the world tons of advice are handed out about how to be happy though married, but few tips are given on how to be happy though unmarried, yet this problem has become of as vital importance as the other to a large number of bachelors who see no lady, either dark or fair, entering their lives, as the fortune tellers say."

Irrigated Lands Being Used to Grow Peas

The irrigated districts of Alberta are being selected for the growing of another specialized crop of which Canada has need and a further source of revenue is to be added to many they already possess. During the present year some 400 acres of canning peas for seed will be grown upon the first irrigated lands of this territory under contract to a Vancouver canning company which is already active in the canning industry in the province. The greater part of this will be in the Barnwell-Faber irrigation district, but test plots will also be grown in the Coal Dale and Lethbridge Northern Irrigation districts.

According to the statement of officials all canning companies in Canada are at the present time forced to import their pea seed from the United States, none being grown in the Dominion. It is believed, however, by experts of the canning company that the irrigated fields of Alberta will prove a splendid locality for the growing of seed in Canada and if the experiment turns out as expected it is thought that some $500 to 12000 acres of irrigated land can be used for this purpose yearly. What this activity might mean will be shown from the proportions of the canning pea industry in the Dominion, some 1,591,255 cases worth $3,415,255 being put up in 1918. At the experimental farm at Lethbridge as high as 50 bushels to the acre have been raised, but 25 to 30 bushels of re-cleaned seed is considered a good average and will bring the growers from $40 to $60 per acre.

At the same time the company is undertaking a thorough survey of the irrigation districts surrounding Lethbridge to learn what can be grown which would make the establishment of a cannery possible. Green peas will be the basis, but other crops are required to lengthen the time of operation. Strawberries and raspberries are grown very successfully in the irrigated districts while spinach, carrots, beets, cabbage, and cucumbers are highly successful crops which are possibilities, and sweet corn will also probably furnish raw material for the plant. Experiments are to be undertaken in the Barnwell district in the growing of tomatoes by the mulch paper process in order to learn if these also cannot be supplied.

The area has been looked upon as the logical location for a canning factory for some time and such an establishment has been projected. This draws attention to the progress Alberta has been making in this industry and its bright outlook in this regard. The three Prairie provinces constitute a huge consuming market for canned fruits and vegetables but while in a position to grow many of the raw products their manufacturing requirements have in the past been supplied from Ontario and British Columbia. At the time of the 1920 census, while there were 136 fruit and vegetable canning factories in Canada, there was only one located in the Prairie Provinces located at East Kildonan, near Winnipeg. Since that time, however, Alberta has had a good foundation for the industry.

MERCHANT WOULD GAIN ALSO THE STANDARD

There are people in Strathmore who buy almost everything at home and from home-town merchants.

There are also people in this community who buy very little here, thoughtlessly spending their money out of town where it is lost to the community. Those who buy here benefit the community by keeping their money in local circulation and reap the additional rewards of buying from business enterprises that depend, for their very existence, upon their reputation for fair dealing. The home-town merchant gives his patrons and his community the fruits of his industry and his community's patronage.

The same principle which urges people to patronize the local merchant who has his money invested where it serves them most, should impel the merchant to advertise. The Standard boosts Strathmore and the Bow Valley and its people, institutions and business. It is a fixture with a heavy investment and dependent, for its existence as a booster, upon the patronage of the community. Merchants advertise in newspapers to increase their business. Consumers read newspaper advertisements that they may buy with the least expense of time and effort, and most advantageously both in respect to price and quality. Both advertiser and buyer forget that this advertising makes possible the newspaper that brings them the news of the day and provides a stimulant to community growth and betterment.

The Standard is not complaining about the patronage of the local merchants—most of whom use space most consistently—but there are still some who think that they can extract "bribes" from the Standard, and they can, but they could exist better by making use of a reasonable space each week, and so could the Standard. Let's get together: Thank you!

NEXT YEAR WILL NEVER COME TO YOU

The annual clean-up throughout town is being carried on most vigorously, particularly so early in the season, which is a most commendable work on the part of Mayor Sharnup and the Councilors.

The accumulations of the winter are surely a menace to the health of any community, and this clean-up will surely pay the cost many times in the matter of the surety of the health of the citizens.

The old time enemies, Mr. and Mrs. House Fly, will be seriously handicapped through the breaking up of the breeding grounds of these trouble-makers.

This is the season for everyone to be on guard to locate the first flies of the season, which if destroyed now will save the swarming of thousands a few weeks hence.

Owners of motes may materially assist in exterminating another trouble-maker—the mosquito—by making use of old oil from their cars, by spreading same on any stagnant pools of water.

The season is also at hand for each one to plant a few trees and shrubs, the cost of which is very little, and the return in general satisfaction and interest which will develop in your home, whether you are an owner or tenant. The planting will amply repay you even though you might change your residence.

The Mayor and Council might give an excellent lead by undertaking to put out trees on the boulevards, complete two or three blocks each year in localities where the residents would undertake to water same regularly. All of which would help to make Strathmore one of the prettiest towns in Alberta within five years.

The results obtained at the park is surely ample evidence of the foresight of Mr. E. R. Stockton a few years ago, which also reminds the Standard that a few dollars expended in the Park would be well worthy of the consideration of the Council as a whole.

The outstanding examples of what may be accomplished by the individual within a very short time if the work accomplished by Mr. A. V. McParland at the Telephone Office, a beauty spot that is the pride of all the phone officials throughout the Province, and another result obtained by Mr. Ted Schulte upon a piece of land that was simply laid waste a very short time ago. Everyone joins with pride in the good work accomplished at the Memorial Hall and Masonic Hall, all most solely the work of two individuals, W. S. Peterson and James Gunn. Another demonstration at the addition to the School grounds, where the care and interest exercised by Mark Crilly may be seen and admired in the beautiful rows of trees which are just now coming into bud.

YOU SHOULD REMEMBER MAY 12 MOTHER'S DAY

Mother's Day. All over the nation and in many other places, that terrestrial saint will become the object of much homage and veneration. There is a dispute in progress as to who originated the idea. For the rest of us that is unimportant. But it is easy to understand why any person responsible for so inspiring a thought should cherish the credit for it and yet nothing could be more unlike a mother than to squabble about whose was the credit.

One need only consult one's own experience and seek in vain to recall a single instance when mother sought credit for the service and love she bore her kin. The home may have looked especially tidy, the meal may have been unusually tasty, the covers might have been tucked with especial care, the sick room may have been comforted by her almost divine presence, yet not in a single instance did the claim credit for it. Mothers find their satisfaction in something else.

It will be an old son or daughter who permits Sunday to pass without one message, some greeting to the living mother, or without some love-tinged remembrance or tribute to the mother dead. From the motherless everywhere to the motherhood which anywhere goes the counsel to dedicate Sunday, May 12th, to her honor and her service.

HANNA PLANTS MORE THAN THOUSAND TREES

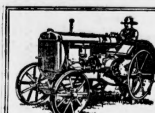

The Hanna Herald says more than one thousand young trees are being set out this year on the boulevards of Hanna. The policy of planting trees throughout the Hanna streets is being continued and will be followed up until such time as all streets have been provided with healthy young shade trees. This year's program is a fairly extensive one, and it is a very gratifying one to see the council take such interest.

A note of warning must be issued to residents of Hanna, however, in respect to the damage which has been done young trees which were set out last spring have been broken down; limbs have been torn off; little trunks have been trampled and bent to the ground.

The cause of this damage is not to be laid at the door of children, altogether. Too much damage has been caused to these trees by teamsters carelessly driving over boulevards. Stray animals have also caused some damage in the local central park, on Main Street, which will soon be a thing of beauty, with its well planned trees and shrubbery. The destruction of these young trees along the boulevards is a thing which should be deplored by every decent citizen who has any interest whatsoever in his town. Hanna may be made one of the most beautiful prairie towns in the Province of Alberta within a few years, if the children and adults will cooperate in the protection of our young trees.

Teachers and parents are urged by the Herald to spend a few minutes at some time during the coming week, telling their children of the future benefits to be derived from having Hanna well planted with shade trees. Tell the boys and the girls that little saplings which are fighting to their life on the boulevards of Hanna today, will soon grow to magnificent shade trees which will be things of beauty and a source of comfort to everyone. Caution the children against doing an injury to a tree, just as the humane, sensible child should refrain from burning a "poor little kitten or a cute young puppy."

Children who have damaged trees in the past will hardly repeat the performance if they understand that they will, in future years, probably be ashamed of their folly. The boy who twists the limb from a sapling hardly does so with any malicious feeling, but rather through over-embarrassment of "pep" or energy. He feels the urge to run, jump, throw a stick or a stone, or tackle the first thing within his reach. In passing the little trees on the boulevards, the temptation is to catch at a limb, and it is a very gratifying one to see the council take such interest.

reparable damage to the sapling. If the boy understands and is frequently cautioned against perpetrating such an injury, the Herald feels that the boulevards will become things of beauty at a much earlier date.

With the adults who are guilty of injuring trees, the town of Hanna is prepared to deal severely. A by-law is on the statutes of the town, providing a severe penalty for driving across boulevards and sidewalks. A warning issued elsewhere in this paper, conveys the official "tip" that prosecutions will be instituted against offenders in this category.

A little more co-operation among Hanna's citizens will be the means of saving the young trees already set out and bringing them to a state of maturity when they will be worth many thousands of dollars to the residents of this town.

MINNESOTA ENACTS OLD AGE PENSION LAW

ST. PAUL, Minn.—An old age pension bill passed the state legislature and has been signed by the governor. The new law provides for the county system. Any county board, by a two-thirds vote of the commissioners, may establish an old age pension fund and put the plan into operation.

The pension must not exceed $1 a day and an applicant must be at least 70 years of age, a citizen, and resident of the state and county for 15 years.

Failure to support his family for six months or more during the 15-year period bars an applicant from receiving the pension. Ownership of property worth $2,000 is also a bar.

One clause gives any district court judge the power to require applicant to transfer his property to the state board of control, "which may buy or sell the same and allow credit therefor to the account of the pensioner."
